District of Utah

Internship Opportunity Spring 2023

The U.S. Probation and Pretrial Service System assists the federal courts in the fair administration of justice, to protect the community, and to bring about long-term, positive changes in individuals under supervision.

Officers investigate and supervise persons charged with or convicted of federal crimes

- Gather and verify information about persons who come before the courts
- Prepare reports the courts rely on to make release and sentencing decisions
- Supervise persons released to the community by maintaining personal contact with these individuals to assess compliance, implement supervision strategies, and address risk factors
- Direct persons under supervision to reentry and rehabilitation services to include: substance abuse treatment, mental health treatment, training and/or employment assistance

The court has several reentry programs including:

- Tribal Community Reentry Court
- Utah Alternatives to Conviction Track
- RISE Drug Court
- RISE Behavioral Health Court
- Veteran's Court

Interns would gain experience in the administration of justice, including caseload management, and assist in investigating defendant's backgrounds. Interns would have the opportunity to integrate classroom theory with practical knowledge in a highly interactive environment. Practical experience would be gained in pretrial services, presentence investigations, and post-conviction supervision.
